

ARIZONA HAS FOUR CASES IDENTIFIED IN OUTBREAK

Please read the below information and do not consume this product. Don't be added to the list of already 87 people in 35 states.

- On March 10, 2018, PDX Aromatics of Portland, Oregon recalled kratom-containing powder products sold online between January 18, 2018, and February 18, 2018. People should not consume recalled kratom products or any brand of kratom in any form. Consumers who bought recalled kratom products sold online can contact the website where it was purchased for a refund.

ADVICE TO CONSUMERS

- At this time, the CDC recommends that people not consume any brand of kratom in any form because it could be contaminated with salmonella and could cause illness.
  - No common brands or suppliers have been identified.
  - Kratom is sold in many forms, including leaves, pills, capsules, powder, and tea.
  - Kratom is also known as Thang, Kakuam, Thom, Ketom, and Biak.
- Contact a healthcare provider if you think you became sick from consuming kratom.
  - Most people infected with salmonella develop the following signs and symptoms 12-72 hours after being exposed to the bacteria:
    - Diarrhea
    - Fever
    - Abdominal cramps
- Talk to your health care provider before taking any supplement, especially if you are in a group more likely to get severe salmonella infection. People in the following groups are more likely to get severe salmonella infection:
  - People with weakened immune systems, including people who are receiving chemotherapy or have HIV
  - Pregnant women
  - Children younger than 5 years
  - Older adults